Environmental Stories:

Kansas City Star - Mitigate environmental impact of South Lawrence Trafficway - 10/27/13 - The long-term effect of the South Lawrence Trafficway on nature and its neighbors won't be known for years. At this point, there is no going back. But KDOT must be sure to work with the communities involved going forward. <http://www.kansascity.com/2013/10/27/4577116/mitigate-environmental-impact.html>

Des Moines Register - Iowa View: We must take climate change action now - 10/27/13 - Let's push our government — at the city, state and federal levels — to make the changes we need to make as leaders in the world, to sustain and prevent further climate change. We owe this to all children and their children's children. The time to act is now. <http://www.desmoinesregister.com/article/20131027/OPINION01/310270074/1035/>

Show-Me Daily (blog) - The EPA And Kansas City - 10/25/13 - Most people know that as a result of foot dragging from Kansas City politicians, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sued the city over our antebellum sewer system. As a result, our already inefficient and Byzantine water department will be increasing our rates in order to pay for the overhaul — whenever that happens. <http://www.showmedaily.org/2013/10/the-epa-and-kansas-city.html>

Associated Press - Iowa dairy settles with EPA on alleged violations - 10/25/13 - Federal officials say a northwest Iowa dairy accused of violating the Clean Water Act will pay a $20,000 civil penalty. The Environmental Protection Agency said Friday that the money settles alleged violations by County Edge Dairy Inc. at its Inwood facility. <http://www.kwwl.com/story/23792268/iowa-dairy-settles-with-epa-on-alleged-violations>

Missourian (Columbia, Mo.) - Sullivan Firm to Pay Settlement in EPA Case - 10/26/13 - Ritchie Enterprises Inc., a Sullivan, Mo., company doing business as PuroClean Emergency Restoration Services, has agreed to pay a $30,000 civil penalty to settle allegations that it failed to use proper lead-safe work practices. http://www.emissourian.com/article_3cb26ee1-887e-559b-a9f6-0802bb12a178.html
